ANTI-SUFFRAGE FIGHT STARTED BY THE WOMEN

Columbus Women to Oppose Votes for Fair Sex.
BALLOT IS NOT DESIRABLE

Local Constitutional Convention
Delegates That Only Small Minority of Women Throughout State
Have Privilege and That They Should Have Full Share of Responsibility for Public Welfare in Homes.
and Dries Do Not Agree.

Columbus, O., Feb. 12.—Local women prominent in social life of the capital city, met today and organized to fight
the anti-suffrage movement
which has for its motive
the removal of equal suffrage propositions throughout the state, and to influence constitutional conventions either to adopt a suffrage
amendment or to leave the question to the people.
They have already drafted an anti-suffrage petition, which will be submitted to the constitutional convention.

The petition reads: "We, the understanding women, citizens of Ohio, respectfully protest and request against any modification of our state constitution that imposes upon women the dual responsibilities involved in the franchise. We believe that women should exercise their full share
of responsibility for the state without the ballot. We believe that only a small minority of the women of the state desire the franchise and we respectfully request that to impose the responsibility of the franchise upon an understanding electorate is unfair to the majority and dangerous to the state.
We therefore respectfully object to all measures having that effect."

WETS VICTORIOUS

Liquor Committee on License Proposition.

Columbus, O., Feb. 12.—Insofar as the issue of saloons is concerned, the compromise between the
drys in the liquor traffic
and the constitutional convention has been practically abandoned. The committee will meet in this session this afternoon, and will go through the form
to reach an agreement. But they conceded that the majority of members of the committee
have made up to report
the proposal for unrestricted
liquor and that is what the wets want.

Members of the committee will report on their own report and it probably will favor the Winn proposal,
which is for restricted prohibition
where permissible in the large cities. All events the meeting of the committee will be the last, and they will go to the convention.

Winn Refuses to Sign.
In Fess of Antioch college,
a member of the committee,
that the constitution should prohibit the liquor traffic in any manner, and therefore he refused to sign the report. Whether any other member of the committee will join him in this stand is problematical.

Winn Accepts Invitation.
Columbus, O., Feb. 12.—H. H.
Winn, of Tacoma, Wash., known as "hobo orator," is in Columbus
today for the session of the constitutional convention tomorrow and accept the invitation extended by the convention. He will come to Columbus and will be the game and stand by the constitution remains to be seen.

Burns Killed By Bandits

Victim of Gotham Bandits Was Former Ohio Police Chief.

New York, Feb. 12.—Two highway-men sat in the saloon of Patrick Burns, a former chief of police in two Ohio towns and in Lancaster, Pa., in the Bronx, in the small hours
of the morning, drinking short beers,
and when every other customer had gone they stuck up the bartender,
Frank Newberger, and killed Mr.
Burns with revolvers, and got away with $2.50, the telephone receipts for the night, for their pains, after overlooking a roll of $90 in Mr. Burns' pocket.

Burns was chief of police at Findlay, O., several years ago, and had been on the police force of Toledo for two years. Six years ago he became a United States marshal in Alaska, where he stayed for a year,
going from there to Lancaster, Pa.,
where he was a policeman on the Lancaster force and also ran a hotel
in Bareville, near Lancaster.

Killed For His Money.
Sunbury, Pa., Feb. 12.—Harry E.
Miller, proprietor of a poolroom and bowling alley, was robbed and murdered in his place of business. When Miller failed to return to his home
his sister made a search for him.
Going to the poolroom she found the door partly open, and her brother
lying in a pool of blood on the floor.
Miller had been shot in the throat,
the bullet taking an upward course
into the brain.

Revenue Collector Dies.
Manila, Feb. 12.—Ellis Cromwell, collector of internal revenue for the Philippines, died suddenly here of heart disease.

Girl Openly Defies Enemies

Columbus Girl Will Resume School
Duties at Roscoe.

Columbus, O., Feb. 12.—Miss Florence Osborn telephoned to Roscoe, Coshocton county, that a temporary indisposition would prevent her returning there today, but that she would be on hand tomorrow to resume her work as school teacher, all incendiaries and threats to the contrary notwithstanding. Miss Osborn said that she has been promised ample protection and that she has no fear. State Fire Marshal Zuber went to Roscoe today. His assistants have been on the trail of the firebugs who have objected to the Columbus girl teaching school there and he proposes to take charge of the work in person, confident that the offenders
will be rounded up speedily.

Uses Intervention on Part of United States as Threat to Give Emphasis

uation More Acute by Intensifying Hatred For Americans—Vice President Talks in Different Vein at Capital of Republic.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 12.—In an effort to have the rebels in northern Mexico lay down their arms and become peaceful citizens, the specter of American intervention in Mexico
is being held up. Aureliano Gonzalez, acting governor of Chihuahua, issued a proclamation to the people of the revolting state, and had it telegraphed to the most remote sections. The proclamation calls attention to the blood that was shed in the recent Madero revolution, "our late fratricidal war," he calls it, and then urges the people in the name of the fatherland
that they love to lay down their arms
and not again augment the number of widows and orphans.

Referring to intervention, he says:
"The United States of America have declared that we are an inferior race,
incapable of self-government and unworthy to figure in the concert of free people, and are preparing a formidable army to invade and profane
the sacred ground of our beloved country."

"UNCLE LON" LIVINGSTON

Georgia Congressman's Death
Was Due to Disappointment.

Defeat Results Fatally

Congressman Livingston Said to Have Died of Broken Heart.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Representative Leonidas F. Livingston of Georgia, "Uncle Lon" as he was known in Washington, died here at his home in his eightieth year. Mr. Livingston had hardly a sick day up to Nov. 19, 1910, when he was defeated for election to the Sixty-second congress.
This hurt him and he was frank to admit it.

"Had my constituents left me in the harness, I might have lived to be a hundred," he often said in the last few months. "I had become accustomed to the congressional routine
and I was an efficient if old machine."

Suffocated by Smoke.
Fort Clinton, O., Feb. 12.—Mike Karnes, 55, known as Big Mike, because he was 6 feet 5 inches tall, was found smothered in his home at Catawba Island, when the building was discovered to be on fire.

Worldwide Traveler in Vicinity of Mount Pleasant, Pa.

Mount Pleasant, Pa., Feb. 12.—
James Keller, 50, a wealthy worldwide traveler, is being sought by Coroner H. A. McMurray's deputies and state troopers as the result of deathbed declarations of May Halley, 16-year-old telephone operator,
who died here under conditions
suggestive of foul play. Her arms and body were bruised and a half-dozen deep abrasions showed where the skin had been scraped away as if in a desperate struggle. The girl's lips were also swollen and discolored
and her chin and neck showed deep red spots.

Show Evidence of Struggle.
These marks, it is declared, showed evidence of a struggle of which the dying girl, according to her sister Hazel, raved in connection with Keller's name, but it is generally believed her death was due, primarily,
to poison, either personally or otherwise administered. Anent this phase of the tragedy, Coroner McMurray admits symptoms of poisoning were discovered. Dr. M. S. Kuhn, the Halley family physician, holding the same opinion, has had the contents of the girl's stomach submitted for examination. The coroner declared that "certain evidence" makes it apparent the girl did not take the poison, whatever its nature, of her own volition. He admits he is seeking Keller.

Hazel Halley, the sister, declares
her dying sister implicated Keller as being cognizant of the events leading up to her death.

Before she died May Halley is said to have moaned: "You tried to take my honor away, but I fought you, fought you hard. I would rather die than lose my honor."

Secretary Knox Will Make Tour of Central America.

Washington, Feb. 12.—For the purpose of solving diplomatic problems
and acquiring more accurate information as to conditions in Central America and northern South America, Secretary of State Knox, by direction of President Taft, will make a five weeks' trip to the Spanish-American republics bordering the Caribbean sea and the Gulf of Mexico.

GULF WATERS BOIL.

Galveston, Tex., Feb. 12.—A lake of boiling water in the Gulf of Mexico is reported by vessels having passed through and around the strange phenomenon
at a point in the western gulf,
about 240 miles south by east of the Texas coast. The area of hot water was variously given as ranging from a half to a mile in circumference, and seamen claim
it is unquestionably due to an explosion on the bottom of the sea of some volcanic eruption, as the water appears to be greatly agitated in several places within the hot lake.

SETON. BADEN-POWELL. BEARD.

THE visit to this country of General Baden-Powell, the founder of the boy scouts, has greatly stimulated interest in the movement among American boys, who were already enthusiastic admirers of the hero of Mafeking. On his arrival in New York harbor he was met by a scout, who went down the bay on a tug and, boarding the incoming liner, welcomed Sir Robert in the name of the Boy Scouts of America and added naively, "And I am mighty glad to see you myself." General Baden-Powell visited Washington, where he and President Taft reviewed a large detachment of scouts in the White House grounds. Our photograph shows the general in company with Ernest Thompson Seton, who has been the leading apostle of the movement in the United States, and Dan Beard, beloved of American boys for his juvenile books and other outdoor writings.

One Day's Awful Record

Seven Persons Sent to Eternity by Ohio Railroads.

Columbus, O., Feb. 12.—Seven killed in railroad accidents in Ohio's record for one day. The accidents occurred as follows:

At Pataskala, Bert D. Russell, 22,
of Somerset, was struck and instantly killed by a fast Pennsylvania train. He was serving his fifth day as a brakeman.

At Alliance, Raymond Rornbaugh
was run down and killed by a Cleveland & Pittsburgh train.

Near Lancaster, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Bowsher, 75 and 74, respectively,
were killed by a Hocking Valley passenger train at a grade crossing.

While sweeping the tracks at Andover, Warren Culver, 50, stepped out of the way of a freight in front of a flywheel and was killed.

In the Pennsylvania yards at Austinburg, Andrew Parousitch, 33, fell under a work train and was killed.

At Dayton, John W. Pickering fell beneath the wheels of an Ohio Electric car and was ground to pieces.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 12.—William Randolph Hearst will address the general assembly of Kentucky at Frankfort on Wednesday of this week, and much interest is being manifested by the people in what he will say. Mr. Hearst appears there in response to an invitation of that body to speak on national topics. At the Jackson day dinner at Washington on Jan. 8 Mr. Hearst created a furore in his address upon public questions and public men.

Mr. Hearst intends to take part in the selection of a presidential candidate at Baltimore next June. He has engaged headquarters in the same hotel as the national Democratic committee, a whole floor having been set aside for his use. As a champion of progressive reforms, Mr. Hearst proposes that there shall be no backward
steps taken by the national Democracy, as he insists was done in 1904
when the conservatives gained temporary control at St. Louis.

After his address at Frankfort he will leave for the Pacific coast. Incidentally, the announcement was made recently that Mr. Hearst has increased his newspaper holdings by the purchase of the Daily Georgian of Atlanta. This means that he proposes to enter into the politics of the south, and there is some speculation
as to how his methods will be accepted by the somewhat conservative politicians below Mason and Dixon's line.

Columbus, O., Feb. 12.—Local women, many prominent in social life of the capital city, met at home of Mrs. Herman Hubert and organized to fight the ballot which has for its motive the extension of equal suffrage throughout the state, and to influence constitutional convention either to adopt a suffrage amendment in Ohio's new organic law or to submit the question to the people. They have already drafted an anti-suffrage petition, which will be submitted to the constitutional convention.

The petition reads: "We, the undersigned women, citizens of Ohio, residents of Franklin county, respectfully protest and re-assert against any modification of our state constitution that would impose upon women the duties and responsibilities involved in the exercise of their full share of power and responsibility for the welfare of the state without the ballot. Frey Road Is Financed $5,000,000 Bond Issue

Interurban Road Extending From Springfield to Cincinnati by Way of Wilmington May Mean Much to Washington.

New York reports are that work on the long talked of Frey Electric road from Springfield to Cincinnati via Wilmington, Jamestown, Cedarville and Clifton, will commence with early spring, the $5,000,000 bonds issue having been placed and the contract for constructing the road let to Mayo brothers, one of the largest construction companies of New York.

Frey has been at work on the project for years, but now claims the road is assured and is greatly pleased over his success. New York banking houses, according to the Springfield Sun, have taken the big issue of bonds, but English capital was behind the deal.

A. D. Pascal, representing the contractors, has been at work on the problem of establishing work camps, and looking after other details before the actual work is taken up.

A power plant will be erected at Clifton where a great dam will be constructed across the Little Miami river, and this is expected to operate a good part of the road. These plans may be changed at a later date.

Plans call for the construction of a road equal in every respect to the best roads in existence today, and a car known as the Beach-Edison car, using storage batteries, may be the type of car chosen for the line.

After passing through Wilmington the road will either be built to Blanchester and connections made with the Cincinnati, Milford and Loveland road, or from Wilmington to Lebanon via Oregon and connect with one of the Blackman lines.

If the road once touches Wilmington, it is believed that it will be only a matter of time before the connecting link between that point and the line at Orient will be constructed by way of this city.

Mr. Smith was a former soldier in the Union army, and for years has been a member of Miram Judy Post at Bloomingburg. He has lived in Fayette county practically all his life and had a wide circle of friends. He leaves a son, Wilbur and daughter, Mamie, besides the sorrowing widow.

City Employees' Salaries Held Up

As no appropriation ordinance has been passed by the present Council, all salaries and other city expenses are tied up and City Auditor Pine has announced that he cannot pay out any money until the money is appropriated.

However the ordinance will, in all probability, be passed at the meeting Tuesday night, and money will then be available for meeting the delayed obligations. The delay has caused some inconvenience among those who depend upon the salaries for a living, and they are naturally anxious to have the ordinance passed.

The ordinance was introduced at a recent meeting and placed in the hands of a committee.

Serious Operations Hospital Crowded

Two major operations were performed at the Hodson hospital Saturday, one was in the hope of saving the life of Ruth Snider, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Snider who was taken suddenly ill Friday with suppurative peritonitis.

Her condition was alarming from the first and the attending physician, Dr. E. F. Todhunter, had the child taken to the hospital for an operation as the last chance.

Dr. Harris came down from Columbus to operate with Dr. Todhunter and Dr. Lucy Pine also assisted.

The operation was performed late Saturday afternoon and the little girl is still in a critical condition.

Also on Saturday, Miss Josie Fultz, residing four miles from town on the Jamestown pike, underwent a serious operation for appendicitis, complicated by other troubles.

The attending physician, Dr. Wilson, of Jeffersonville, called in Dr. Hodson to perform the operation. Miss Fultz is doing nicely with good prospects for recovery.

The hospital is now full, having every bed taken.

Three patients had to be turned away Saturday to the great regret of the management.

Girl Eludes Stern Parent Marries Minister's Son

Smith Jenks, butcher of South Solon, a former resident of Jefferson township, returned Saturday evening after a fruitless effort to prevent his daughter, Ruth Jenks, 16, from wedding Harry Spriggs, son of Rev. Spriggs of the Christian church of South Solon.

Jenks is said to have been very angry over the marriage, and pursued the young couple to Louisville, Ky., where he was too late to prevent the marriage.

Sunday's Springfield Sun makes the following mention of the elopement:

"The young people had planned the elopement for some time and on Monday Ruth Jenks went to Columbus to help her married sister move to another house. On Tuesday, it is said, Spriggs left the village for Columbus. Meeting the girl, they started for Louisville where they intended to be married."

"Thinking something wrong from the manner in which Ruth left the home, her sister called up Mr. Jenks in South Solon on Wednesday to find out if she arrived home. Then it was learned that the couple had left Columbus, and Mr. Jenks hurried to Columbus where he secured the services of a detective and they trailed the man and girl to Louisville where the wedding had been celebrated."

"Shortly after dinner yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Spriggs arrived in this city from Louisville and called up the Jenks home at South Solon to ask for forgiveness, but they were told that Mr. Jenks was on the hunt for them. Then they decided to go to Dayton where relatives of Mr. Spriggs live and with whom they will spend a few days."

"The young people have been going together for about a year it is said, and until recently there was no objection by Mr. Jenks. According to reports, Mr. Spriggs had no occupation but worked around at odd jobs and this was not to the liking of Mr. Jenks, who when he learned of the elopement swore out a warrant for the man."

"Mrs. Jenks said last evening that her husband was hunting the young people and that she had not seen him since Wednesday. It is said that Mr. Jenks stated he would not forgive the young couple and that they would not be welcome under his roof."

The shoe store of Sapp & Pearson, Jamestown, Ohio, recently bought by B. E. It will be run as a branch to Mr. Davis' shoe store in this city.

Death Calls Bright Young Girl

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McCoy, residing this side of Bloomingburg, was darkened Sunday morning at six o'clock by the sudden summons of the death angel to the bright young daughter, Maudie, only 14 years of age.

A week ago the young girl was taken ill with inflammatory rheumatism the disease going to the heart and causing death with a suddenness that came as an overwhelming shock to the parents, brothers and sisters.

An unusually sweet, lovely girl, a favorite with young friends and older friends alike, there are many in this city, Bloomingburg and at the former home, Glendon, who share the grief aroused by her death, and who deeply sympathize with the heart-broken family.

Frey Road Is Financed $5,000,000 Bond Issue

Interurban Road Extending From Springfield to Cincinnati by Way of Wilmington May Mean Much to Washington.

New York reports are that work on the long talked of Frey Electric road from Springfield to Cincinnati via Wilmington, Jamestown, Cedarville and Clifton, will commence with early spring, the $5,000,000 bonds issue having been placed and the contract for constructing the road let to Mayo brothers, one of the largest construction companies of New York.

Frey has been at work on the project for years, but now claims the road is assured and is greatly pleased over his success. New York banking houses, according to the Springfield Sun, have taken the big issue of bonds, but English capital was behind the deal.

A. D. Pascal, representing the contractors, has been at work on the problem of establishing work camps, and looking after other details before the actual work is taken up.

A power plant will be erected at Clifton where a great dam will be constructed across the Little Miami river, and this is expected to operate a good part of the road. These plans may be changed at a later date.

Plans call for the construction of a road equal in every respect to the best roads in existence today, and a car known as the Beach-Edison car, using storage batteries, may be the type of car chosen for the line.

After passing through Wilmington the road will either be built to Blanchester and connections made with the Cincinnati, Milford and Loveland road, or from Wilmington to Lebanon via Oregon and connect with one of the Blackman lines.

If the road once touches Wilmington, it is believed that it will be only a matter of time before the connecting link between that point and the line at Orient will be constructed by way of this city.

IN SOCIETY

A bridal dinner of exceptional beauty and originality was given Saturday evening by Mrs. G. S. Hodson and Miss Ruth Perrill in compliment to Miss Florence Saxton.

In its artistic adornment and the distinctive features of the entertainment the dinner was the admiration of the guests.

The table was laid with twelve covers and a white and green color scheme delightfully bridal. A crystal basket of white sweet peas, Royal hyacinths and smilax, in the center, was flanked on either side by large hearts of smilax. At the ends were tapered blazes in crystal candlesticks and marking each place were tiny crystal candlesticks with white candles burning. Tiny birds, mounted on their beaks, held the place cards in their beaks, and the menu cards were most artistic, booklets in white and green, written in green ink and with covers of Harrison Fisher and Christy pictures.

The present day fad "Paper bag cookery" was represented in each delicious concoction of the five-course dinner, served and the heart idea was effectively introduced.

The possibilities of paper bag cookery were shown in the menu served:

- | | |
|----------------------------------|-----------------|
| Cham Bouillon | Bisque Croutons |
| Olives | Celery |
| Potatoes Maitre d'Hotel | Scones |
| Steamed Cauliflower | |
| | Golden Salad |
| Apples a la Mascotte | Sweet Hearts |
| Nuts Love Potions Heavenly Bliss | Coffee |
| | Water Flowers |

The dinner guests with Miss Saxton were Misses Mina Rowe, Mary Craig, Ruth Fultz, Rose Noble, Mabel Calvert, Lulu Henkle, Florence Looft-jouraw, Mary Collins, Mabel Shoop, Mrs. G. H. Woodmansee.

The after-dinner hour, with the beautiful Hodson home placed at the disposal of the guests and the charming hospitality of the hostesses shown in a diversity of bridal gifts and amusements, was one of rare pleasure.

Each guest brought for the bride-elect a can of fruit, cleverly dressed as a doll or some other disguise, and the guessing of the contents was part of the fun. Also presented to Miss Saxton was a dainty box, containing aprons, caps, gloves, a W. C. T. U. book and articles suggestive of domesticity; a package of paper bags for cooking, and recipes, and an exquisite booklet made by Miss Perrill, in gold and white, with two favorite recipes bearing the name of each guest inside. "Favorites" in gold was on the front page and it was tied with gold cord.

Miss Mina Rowe won the prize in a "Heart Contest," receiving Drummond's "The Greatest Thing in the World."

The remainder of the evening was enjoyed in a game of "Dice Hearts" and music.

Miss Ida Ware, Misses Dorothy Saxton and Wilma Hammer assisted the hostesses in the delightful hospitalities of the evening.

Of local interest is the following announcement in the Springfield Daily News of Sunday:

"A solemn and impressive ceremony was that performed by the Rev. Eli Miller of Calvary Lutheran church when Miss M. Elizabeth Crowe and Otis Holland were united in the holy bonds of matrimony.

The attendants were Miss Edith Bernice Crowe of New Holland, and Charles Boggs of this city.

The bride was beautifully attired in a gown of white batiste, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. She is a young woman who has won many friends, and who has been teaching for several years in the public schools of Fayette county.

The bridegroom was formerly of Washington C. H., but now lives in Springfield and is an automobile and gas engine expert. Mr. and Mrs. Holland left last evening for a western wedding journey. Upon their return they will be at home to their friends at 213 S. Wittenberg avenue."

The bride's home was formerly in the Madison Mills neighborhood, where her family is well known, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Temperance Grove, east of town.

Mr. Robert Schenck was a Sunday visitor from Dayton.

Mrs. R. C. Peddicord is entertaining Mrs. Linn Johnson, of Xenia.

Miss Zella Patton, of Columbus, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Mary Patton.

Mrs. A. T. Vincent went to Austin Monday to spend several days with Mrs. John Rowe.

Miss Mary Trout, of Dayton, was the week end guest of Mrs. N. B. Hall, returning Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker Tanzey, of Columbus, visited Mrs. Tanzey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Cissna, over Sunday.

Dr. Willard Cockerill was over from Dayton spending Sunday with his father, Mr. E. E. Cockerill on the Greenfield pike.

Mr. and Mrs. Werter Shoop and guests, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Carse, of Orrilla, Canada, are spending a couple of days in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Elizabeth Horton and daughter, Vera, leave Monday for the West, going direct to Dalhart, Texas, and visiting in Oklahoma and Colorado, before returning.

Mr. Frank McCormick went to Dayton today on business and also to see Miss Maggie Lease, a relative, who is suffering from a broken hip, the result of a recent fall on the ice.

Mrs. C. E. Parker has given up her home in Greenfield to return to this city and is making her home for the winter with Mr. William Campbell and daughter, Virginia.

FIGHT COMIC SUPPLEMENTS.

The Era club of New Orleans, the largest woman's club in the South, has launched a crusade against the Sunday newspaper colored comic supplements. Following a spirited debate, the club recently appointed a committee to call upon the local newspapers, two of which print comic supplements, and urge that they abolish these features.

The club is to urge, instead, the use of real art supplements, either copies of famous paintings or photographs of places and things that will be educative. It is asserted that the comics often are offensive, that many of them teach bad language to children, that they are inartistic, and teach wrong ideas of life.

Lincoln's Birthday, Feb. 12

YOU REALIZE that a truly great man does not finally belong to any party, or section; not even to any country. The truly great man belongs to the whole world—to humanity.

Lincoln's political career was partisan; sectional; it had to be. But the man himself was neither. And today all sections of the country, and of the world, acknowledge it, and honor his greatness.

There's nothing sectional, or local, or partisan about good clothes, either. Well dressed men look about the same here as anywhere else; and they want to look the same.

HART SCHAFFNER & MARX

have done a great service to all of us by making their kind of clothes—the quality, the style, the finish that men like you want. We've done some service here in having them for you to buy and wear. Just now we are closing out our Winter Weights of these goods at Cut Prices $2.50 to $7.50 Reductions on SUITS and OVERCOATS. Some of them are medium in weight. GOOD ROADS SUPPORT.

If any citizen of this community cannot think of a good reason for supporting a movement for good roads he will find it in the subjoined list. The state of Ohio during 1911 enacted a law revolutionizing methods of road construction and repair in that state. In furtherance of the good roads work the Ohio Good Roads Federation has started a campaign to secure a constitutional amendment permitting the issuing of bonds for state aid to road construction. As a part of its campaign the Federation issued a bulletin giving the following reasons for supporting the project:

If you are a farmer, because your farm will increase in value, you can raise more profitable crops, your cost of hauling will be lower, you can market your products when prices are best, your children can get to school, your family can attend church, your physician will be in closer touch with you, your boys and girls will stay on the farm, you will have better mail service, more social life, and happier conditions all around.

If you are a merchant, because good roads enlarge your trading radius, and make it possible for purchasers to reach you every day in the year, and thereby increase your sales.

If you represent a chamber of commerce or a board of trade, because the public roads are commercial feeders to the cities, and every improvement of these roads means a greater prosperity to the cities through increased agricultural production and greater stimulus to all industries.

If you are a highway official, because you are striving for better methods of road construction and maintenance, and more efficient road administration.

If you are a railroad man, because improved roads mean greater production, consequently more traffic, prevent freight congestion, bring more industries, more roads, more tourists.

If you are an automobile user, because you can get the benefit of your machinery every day in the year, your repair bills will be lower, longer and better tours will be possible at all seasons of the year.

If you are a dealer in farm products and implements, because you can receive the products and deliver the implements at all times.

If you are an automobile manufacturer, because every mile of improved roads means a greater demand for both pleasure and commercial cars, increases wealth, and consequently the power to purchase.

If you are a publisher or editor, because improved roads make wider circulation possible, increase advertising by stimulating commercial enterprises, and because road improvement is the most important economic question of the age.

If you are a manufacturer of road machinery or road materials, because road improvement means more business.

If you are the proprietor of a hotel, because improved roads mean more tourists and more commercial travel. New England, with its system of good roads, gets $60,000,000 a year from tourists alone.

If you are a banker, because good roads will increase agriculture, commerce, and manufacture, depositors, deposits, and dividends.

If you are a progressive citizen, because you cannot progress so long as your state and nation remain in the mud.

Wall Street Gives Full Value

Country at Large
Deeply Its Debtor

By HENRY CLAWS, Banker,
of New York

I RECOLLECT the time when men in the higher walks of social and business life would have been almost ashamed to be seen in Wall street.

But now men in the same sphere are PROUD OF THE DISTINCTION, both socially and financially, of being in business there. In fact, Wall street is not only a necessary market, but has become a healthy stimulant to the rest of the business of the country and a great business barometer. Every financial, industrial and mercantile interest looks to this center as an INDEX OF ITS PROSPERITY. IT MOVES THE MONEY THAT CONTROLS THE AFFAIRS OF THE WORLD.

It is a popular delusion that Wall street is a place where people who are in the "ring" take something for nothing. No idea could be further wide of the mark in regard to Wall street men as a class, however true it may be of some individual instances, as in other departments of business.

WALL STREET GIVES FULL VALUE FOR EVERYTHING IT RECEIVES, AND THE COUNTRY AT LARGE IS DEEPLY ITS DEBTOR. SOME PEOPLE MAY THINK THIS A PARADOX, BUT THERE IS NOTHING MORE EASILY DEMONSTRATED TO THOSE WHO HAVE OBSERVED THE COMMERCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS OF THE COUNTRY AND THE AGE.

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

Yes, on this day we celebrate
The name of Lincoln, truly great.
The man whom God himself ordained
To free the people law had chained.

No crown he needed on his brow,
No gaudy trappings worn for show.
His character, so pure and clear,
Shines brighter each returning year.

From lowly depth to giddy height
His steps ascended day and night.
Until he stood where morning broke
And saw the world, ere it awoke.

To know how dark the night had been,
And how a power they had not seen
Had made them think that thing was right
Which over them had cast a blight.

He smiled and lo! the dreamers
woke;
He spoke and lo! the chains were broke;
He smiled and lo! how great the charm
Where storms had raged, the sea was calm.

He calls us yet to nobler things.
The inspiration this day brings
Is Lincoln's noble life and word.
'Tis right makes might, and not the sword.

Urge Rebels To Drop Arms

"If the voice of reason and patriotism does not assert itself, we will not only lose our ideals, but will be enslaved by a foreign invader and history will announce a tremendous fall that will burn on the foreheads of our sons and inflame the infamous stigma of treason.

Takes Opposite Course.

While this proclamation was being made public in the north to the men in arms, Pino Suarez, the vice president, in Mexico City, was making a statement that intervention was most remote, in order to stem the tide of anti-Americanism that has been rapidly rising all over Mexico, and which the proclamation of the Chihuahua official will only fan to greater fury.

Vice President Suarez gave out the following statement: "There was a long time during which I looked with distrust upon the American people, but after my last residence in the United States, in which time I came in contact with thinkers and writers of that nation, I have become thoroughly convinced that the United States will never intervene in Mexico, and that in regard to us, the American people are animated by only good wishes and a desire to strengthen the commercial and financial relations which are of mutual benefit."

If the rebels do not lay down their arms, the government is planning to form a volunteer army, if possible, to help fight them into submission.

Weatherman Makes Good Promises

Promises Let-Up on Frigid Weather During Present Week.

Washington, Feb. 12.—The weather bureau issued the following weekly bulletin:

The weather map of the northern hemisphere of this date shows a general change from the intense winter conditions that have prevailed almost continuously since the first of the year, and it is probable that moderate temperature will prevail the present week throughout the United States. There are no indications at the present time of a general storm to cross the country, and the indications are that the precipitation for the week will be generally light except in the north Pacific states, where more than the normal rainfall will occur.

Babylon, L. I., Feb. 12.—Miss Margaret Cameron, the protegee of the late Edwin Hawley, the railroad millionaire, has indicated to friends that she has found a document or will under which she become entitled to a share of his estate. Relatives of Mr. Hawley assert that he died intestate and have applied for letters of administration. Miss Cameron is reported to have found the document during a visit here to the railroad man's country home.

Twenty-four Horses Drowned.

New York, Feb. 12.—Two 36-inch water mains burst at Ninety-seventh street and West End avenue, cutting down the water supply on the West Side between Ninety-seventh and Fiftieth streets, down 24 horses in a stable and bursting a gas main, the fumes of which overcame several persons in apartments and private houses near by.

THE PRODIGAL JUDGE

By VAUGHAN KESTER
Illustrations By D. MELVILLE

fabric is tottering—I can see it totter—and he tottered himself as he said this.

"Well, I'm an old man—the spectacle won't long offend me. I'll die presently." He was so profoundly moved by the thought that he could not go on. His voice broke, and he buried his face in his arms. A sympathetic moisture had gathered in the child's eyes. He slipped from his chair and stole to the judge's side.

"I'm mighty sorry you're going to die."

"Bless you, Hannibal!" cried the judge, looking wonderfully cheerful, despite his recent bitterness of spirit. "I'm not experiencing any of the pangs of mortality now. My dissolution ain't a matter of tonight or tomorrow—there's some life in Slocum Price yet, for all the rough usage, eh? I think you'd better go to bed."

"I reckon I had," agreed Hannibal, slipping from his chair.

"Well, take my bed back of the quilt. You'll find a hoe there. You can dig up the dirt under the shuck tick with it—which helps astonishingly. What would the world say if it could know that Judge Slocum Price makes his bed with a hoe!"

Hannibal retired behind the quilt. "Do you find it comfortable?" the judge asked, when the rustling of the shuck tick informed him that the child had lain down.

"Yes, sir," said the boy.

"Have you said your prayers?" inquired the judge.

"No, sir, I ain't said 'em yet."

"Well, say them now. Religion is as becoming in the young as it is respectable in the aged. I'll not disturb you tonight, for it is God's will that I should stay up and get very drunk."

CHAPTER VIII.

Boon Companions.

Some time later the judge was aware of a step on the path beyond his door, and glancing up, saw the tall figure of a man pause on his threshold. A whispered curse slipped from between his lips. Aloud he said:

"Is that you, Mr. Mahaffy?" He got no reply, but the tall figure, propelled by very long legs, stalked into the shanty and a pair of keen, restless eyes deeply set under a high, bald head were bent curiously upon him.

"I take it I'm intruding," the newcomer said surlily.

"Why should you think that, Solomon Mahaffy? When has my door been closed on you?" the judge asked.

"His Grandson Is Back of That Curtain, Now—Asleep in My Bed."

but there was a guilty deepening of the flush on his face. Mr. Mahaffy glanced at the jug, at the half-emptied glass, lastly at the judge himself.

"You seem to be raising first-rate hell all by yourself."

"Oh, be reasonable, Solomon. You'd gone down to the steamboat landing," said the judge plaintively. By way of answer, Mahaffy shot him a contemptuous glance. "Take a chair—do, Solomon!" entreated the judge.

"When did I ever sneak a jug into my shanty?" asked Mahaffy sternly, evidently conscious of entire rectitude in this matter.

"I deplore your choice of words, Solomon," said the judge. "You know damn well that if you'd been here I couldn't have got past your place with that jug! But let's deal with conditions. Here's the jug, with some liquor left in it—here's a glass. Now what more do you want?"

Mr. Mahaffy drew near the table. "Sit down," urged the judge.

"I hope you feel mean?" said Mahaffy.

"If it's any satisfaction to you, I do," admitted the judge.

"You ought to," Mahaffy drew forward a chair. The judge filled his glass.

"What's the news from the landing?"

Mahaffy brought his fist down on the table.

"I heard the boat churning away round back of the bend, then I saw the lights, and she tied up and they tossed off the freight. Then she churned away again and her lights got back of the trees on the bank. There was the lap of waves on the shore, and I was left with the half-dozed miserable loafers who'd crawled out to see the boat come in. That's the news six days a week!"

By the river had come the judge, tentatively hopeful, but at heart expecting nothing, therefore immune to disappointment and equipped for failure. By the river had come Mr. Mahaffy, as unfit as the judge himself, and for the same reason, but sour and bitter with the world, believing always in the possibility of some miracle of regeneration.

At the judge's elbow Mr. Mahaffy changed his position with nervous suddenness. Then he folded his long arms.

"You asked if there was any news, Price; while we were waiting for the boat a raft tied up to the bank; the fellow aboard of it had a man he'd fished up out of the river, a man who'd been pretty well cut to pieces."

"Who was he?" asked the judge.

"Nobody knew, and he wasn't conscious. I shouldn't be surprised if he never opens his lips again. When the doctor had looked to his cuts, the fellow on the raft cast off and went on down the Elk."

It occurred to the judge that he himself had news to impart. He must account for the boy's presence.

"While you've been taking your whiff of life down at the steamboat landing, Mahaffy, I've been experiencing a most extraordinary coincidence. When I went to the war of '12, a Hazard accompanied me as my orderly. His grandson is back of that curtain now—asleep—in my bed!" Mahaffy put down his glass.

"You were like this once before," he said darkly. But at that instant the shuck tick rattled noisily at some movement of the sleeping boy. Mahaffy quitted his chair, and crossing the room, drew the quilt aside. A glance sufficed to assure him that in part, at least, the judge spoke the truth.

There was a hoot-beat on the road. It came nearer and nearer and presently sounded just beyond the door. Then it ceased, and a voice said:

"Hallo, there!" The judge scrambled to his feet, and taking up the candle, staggered into the yard. Mahaffy followed him.

"What's wanted?" asked the judge holding his candle aloft. The light showed a tall fellow mounted on a handsome bay horse. It was Murrell.

"Have either of you gentlemen seen a boy go through here today?" Murrell glanced from one to the other. Mr. Mahaffy's thin lips twisted themselves into a sarcastic smile. He turned to the judge, who spoke up quickly.

"Did he carry a bundle and rifle?" he asked. Murrell gave eager assent.

"Well," said the judge, "he stopped here along about four o'clock, and asked his way to the nearest river landing."

Girls' School Burns

Students and Teachers Escape, but Lose Effects.

New York, Feb. 12.—The main building of Miss Knox's school for girls, that perched atop of a big hill near the Briarcliffe Lodge, at Briarcliffe-on-the-Hudson, was entirely destroyed by flames, driven by a heavy gale, that rendered the work of the local fire department practically useless. The girls and teachers all got out safely, but they had to leave most of their belongings to the flames. The damage was about $75,000.

North Easton, Mass., Feb. 12.—A new field is opened for college men—that of acting as valet for a cow. F. Lothrop Ames of North Easton declared that a personal attendant was needful for the comfort of his $2,500 prizewinner, Dolly Dimple. He made known his wish to the faculty of the Ames college at Webster City, Ia., and Alonzo Hathaway was given a year's leave of absence to look after the bovine's comfort. HEADACHE!—IT'S YOUR LIVER

Too Many People Take Headache Powders When a Liver Tonic Is Needed.

Try Olive Tablets—the Substitute for Calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the one substitute for dangerous calomel. They do all of calomel's work without any of its bad after effects.

There is no necessity, when you take Olive Tablets, of following them up with nasty, sickening, griping salts or castor oil, as you should after taking calomel.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel or any other metallic drugs; they are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, sugar-coated, easy to take, and never gripe or cause weakness.

Thousands of people take one every night at bedtime just to prevent disorder of the liver, constipation, bad breath, pimples, headache, etc.

Olive Tablets are made of pure vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

Dr. Edwards, calomel's old enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with liver and bowel troubles.

Try them for a week. Take one on retiring nightly.

"Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

Mexican Outlaws Cut Planter to Pieces With Knives.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Feb. 12.—E. Hans Angelmann, a German owner of a plantation called "El Porvenir," situated near Canton de los Tuxtlas, was assassinated in a most atrocious manner by bandits, who made an attack on the place. As he stepped out of the door he was attacked by some 20 men and overpowered. He put up a stiff fight, however, and after struggling for some time managed to escape from his assailants. They cut off his retreat from the house and soon captured him. This time they tied and literally hacked him to pieces with machetes and knives.

THE PRODIGAL JUDGE

All that day Hannibal was haunted by the memory of what he had heard and seen at Slosson's tavern. More than this, there was his terrible sense of loss, and the grief he could not master. Marking the course of the road westward, he clung to the woods, where his movements were as stealthy as the very shadows themselves.

Presently, as he stumbled forward, he came to a small clearing in the center of which stood a log dwelling. The place seemed deserted.

Tilted back in a chair by the door of this house a man was sleeping. The foot of an owl from a nearby oak roused him. He yawned and stretched himself, thrusting out his fat legs and extending his great arms. Then becoming aware of that small figure which had stolen up the path as he slept and now stood before him in the uncertain light, he hid to rubbing his eyes with the buckles of his plump hands.

"Who are you?" he demanded. "I'm Hannibal Wayne Hazard," said the boy. The man quitted his chair.

"Well—I am glad to know you, Hannibal Wayne Hazard. I am Slosson Price—Judge Slosson Price, sometime major-general of militia and a member of congress, to mention a few of those honors my fellow countrymen have thrust upon me." He made a sweeping gesture with his two hands outspread and bowed ponderously.

The boy saw a man of sixty, whose gross and battered visage told its own story. There was a sparse white mustache about his ears; and his eyes, pale blue and prominent, looked out from under beeling brows. He wore a shabby plum-colored coat and tight, drab breeches. About his fat neck was a black stock, with just a suggestion of solled linen showing above it. His figure was corpulent and unweildy.

"You don't belong in these parts, do you?" asked the judge, when he had completed his scrutiny. "No, sir," answered the boy. He glanced off down the road, where lights were visible among the trees. "What town is that?"

"Pleasantville—which is a lie—but I am neither sufficiently drunk nor sufficiently sober to cope with the possibilities your question offers. Have you so much as fifty cents about you?" and the judge's eyes narrowed to a slit above their folds of puffy flesh. Hannibal, keeping his glance fixed on the man's face, felt back a step. "I can't let you go if you are penniless—I can't do that!" cried the judge, with sudden vehemence. "You shall be my guest for the night. They're a pack of thieves at the tavern," he lowered his voice. "I know 'em, for they've plucked me!" He rested a fat hand on the boy's shoulder and drew him gently but firmly into the shanty. With flint and steel he made a light, and presently a candle was sputtering in his hands. He fitted it into the neck of a tall bottle, and as the light flared up the boy glanced about him.

The interior was mean enough, with its rough walls, dirt floor and black, cavernous fireplace. A shake-down bed in one corner of the room was tastefully screened from the public gaze by a tattered quilt.

"Boy, don't be afraid. Look on me as a friend," urged the judge.

"I reckon I'll be glad to stop," answered Hannibal.

"Such confidence is inspiring. Are you hungry?"

"Yes, sir," replied Hannibal.

"What do you say to cold fish?" the judge smacked his lips to impart a relish to the idea. "I dare swear I can find you some corn bread into the bargain." He began to assemble the dainties he had enumerated.

"Here you are!" he cleared his throat impressively, while benignity shone from every feature of his face. "A moment since you allowed me to think you were solvent to the extent of fifty cents—" Hannibal looked puzzled.

"I wonder if you could be induced to make a temporary loan of that fifty cents? The sum involved is really such a ridiculous trifle I don't need to point out to you the absolute moral certainty of my returning it at an early date."

It was not the loss of his money that Hannibal most feared, and the coin passed from his possession into his host's custody.

"Thank you, my boy! I must step down to the tavern—when I return, please God, we shall know more of each other." While he was still speaking, he had produced a jug from behind the quilt that screened his bed, and now took himself off into the night.

Left alone, Hannibal gravely seated himself at the table. What the judge's larder lacked in variety it more than made up for in quantity, and the boy was grateful for this fact.

Presently he heard the judge's heavy, shuffling step as he came up the path from the road, and a moment later his gross bulk of body filled the doorway. Breathing hard and perspiring, the judge entered the shanty, but his eagerness kept him silent until he had established himself in his chair beside the table, with the jug and a cracked glass at his elbow. Then, bland and smiling, he turned toward his guest.

"My tenderest regards, Hannibal!" and he nodded over the rim of the cracked glass his shaking hand had carried to his lips. Twice the glass was filled and emptied, and then again, his roving, watery eyes rested meditatively on the child. "Have you a father?" he asked suddenly. Hannibal shook his head. "A mother?"

"They both of them done died years and years ago," answered the boy. "I can't tell you how long back it was, but I reckon I don't know much about it. I must have been a small child."

"Ho—a small child!" cried the judge, laughing. He cocked his head on one side and surveyed Hannibal Wayne Hazard with a glance of comic seriousness. "In God's name what do you call yourself now?"

"I'm most ten," said Hannibal, with dignity.

"I can well believe it," responded the judge. "Where did you come from?"

"From across the mountains," "And where are you going?"

"To west Tennessee."

"Have you any friends there?"

"Yes, sir."

"You've money enough to see you through?" and what the judge intended for a smile of fatherly affection became a leer of infinite cunning.

"I got ten dollars."

"Ten dollars—" the judge smacked his lips once. "Ten dollars—" he repeated, and smacked his lips twice.

The purple flush on the judge's face, where the dignity that belonged to age had gone down in wreck, deepened.

He quitted his chair and, lurching somewhat as he did so, began to pace the floor.

"Take me for your example, boy! You may be poor, you may possibly be hungry—you'll often be thirsty, but through it all you will remain that splendid thing—a gentleman! Perhaps you'll contend that the old order is overthrown, that family has gone to the devil? You are right, and there's the pity of it! The social fabric is tottering—I can see it totter—and he tottered himself as he said this.

"Well, I'm an old man—the spectacle won't long offend me. I'll die presently." He was so profoundly moved by the thought that he could not go on. His voice broke, and he buried his face in his arms. A sympathetic moisture had gathered in the child's eyes. He slipped from his chair and stole to the judge's side.

"I'm mighty sorry you're going to die."

"Bless you, Hannibal!" cried the judge, looking wonderfully cheerful, despite his recent bitterness of spirit. "I'm not experiencing any of the pangs of mortality now. My dissolution ain't a matter of tonight or tomorrow—there's some life in Slosson Price yet, for all the rough usage, eh? I think you'd better go to bed."

"I reckon I had," agreed Hannibal, slipping from his chair.

"Well, take my bed back of the quilt. You'll find a hoe there. You can dig up the dirt under the shuck tick with it—which helps astonishingly. What would the world say if it could know that Judge Slosson Price makes his bed with a hoe!"

Hannibal retired behind the quilt. "Do you find it comfortable?" the judge asked, when the rustling of the shuck tick informed him that the child had lain down.

"Yes, sir," said the boy.

"Have you said your prayers?" inquired the judge.

"No, sir, I ain't said 'em yet."

"Well, say them now. Religion is as becoming in the young as it is respectable in the aged. I'll not disturb you tonight, for it is God's will that I should stay up and get very drunk."

CHAPTER VIII.

Boon Companions.

Some time later the judge was aware of a step on the path beyond his door, and glancing up, saw the tall figure of a man pause on his threshold. A whispered course slipped from between his lips. Aloud he said:

"Is that you, Mr. Mahaffy?" He got no reply, but the tall figure, propelled by very long legs, stalked into the shanty and a pair of keen, restless eyes deeply set under a high, bald head were bent curiously upon him.

"I take it I'm intruding," the newcomer said sourly.

"Why should you think that, Solomon Mahaffy? When has my door been closed on you?" the judge asked.

"There was a hoot-beat on the road. It came nearer and nearer, and presently sounded just beyond the door. Then it ceased, and a voice said:

"Hullo, there!" The judge scrambled to his feet, and taking up the candle, staggered into the yard. Mahaffy followed him.

"What's wanted?" asked the judge holding his candle aloft. The light showed a tall fellow mounted on a handsome bay horse. It was Murrell.

"Have either of you gentlemen seen a boy go through here today?" Murrell glanced from one to the other. Mr. Mahaffy's thin lips twisted themselves into a sarcastic smile. He turned to the judge, who spoke up quickly.

"Did he carry a bundle and rifle?" he asked. Murrell gave eager assent.

"Well," said the judge, "he stopped here about four o'clock, and asked his way to the nearest river landing."

New York, Feb. 12.—The main building of Miss Knox's school for girls, that perched atop of a big hill near the Briarcliffe Lodge, at Briarcliffe-on-the-Hudson, was entirely destroyed by flames, driven by a heavy gale, that rendered the work of the local fire department practically useless. The girls and teachers all got out safely, but they had to leave most of their belongings to the flames. The damage was about $75,000.

HEADACHE!—IT'S YOUR LIVER

Too Many People Take Headache Powders When a Liver Tonic Is Needed.

Try Olive Tablets—the Substitute for Calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the one substitute for dangerous calomel. They do all of calomel's work without any of its bad after effects.

There is no necessity, when you take Olive Tablets, of following them up with nasty, sickening, griping salts or castor oil, as you should after taking calomel.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel or any other metallic drugs; they are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, sugar-coated, easy to take, and never gripe or cause weakness.

Thousands of people take one every night at bedtime just to prevent disorder of the liver, constipation, bad breath, pimples, headache, etc.

Olive Tablets are made of pure vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

Dr. Edwards, calomel's old enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with liver and bowel troubles.

Try them for a week. Take one on retiring nightly.

Youthful Travelers Arrive Safely

Three orphan children, tired and travel-worn, got off the 11:11 P. M. train Sunday night, having come from Florence, Colorado, entirely alone.

They were the children of Samuel Weller, formerly of this county, who died on January 28th, his wife dying four years before him. When Mr. Weller died his three children, Barbara, aged 15; Cora, aged 11, and Johnnie, aged 6, were left entirely alone, far from their relatives in this county.

Mrs. Scott McKinney, a sister of Mr. Weller, wrote to her niece and nephew asking them to make her home their home.

The trip was a long, hard one, the children having to change cars four times, at Pueblo, Col., Kansas City, Mo., Chicago and Cincinnati, but they got through nicely, the train officers showing them every kindness.

Mr. McKinney met them at the train with a carriage to take them to his home on the Good Hope pike, where they will be well cared for.

Controller Proposes To Make Directors Dig Up and Settle

The controller of the currency proposes to enforce the law of the national banks that makes directors responsible for losses resulting from excess of loans. The custom has been, when such losses occur, for the bank to charge them off of its books. But the controller insists that where that situation is discovered the bank examiner shall require the negligent directors to immediately make good the loss out of their own pockets, and not leave the bank until they do.

This ruling on the part of the controller will raise the office of director from that of a graceful figurehead to one of responsibility that he must not forget. If a director is willing enough on his own account to run a risk, he will hereafter exercise a consideration for the confiding and innocent stockholders.

Price of Good Horses Is Expected to Soar

Number of Dead Animals Has Been Remarkably Great During Past Few Weeks, and High Price Is Predicted by Auctioneer.

"Within the next month," said a well known auctioneer, a day or two ago, there will be the biggest demand for horses in this section of the state that was ever known. One week of sales convinces me of this for the prices are already remarkable, and good teams are now bringing more money than they did at any time last year.

It was then explained that in addition to so many horses being shipped to other points, and the death rate among horses being unusually heavy the past six or eight weeks,
that there would be a shortage in first class draft horses.

The number of dead horses in Fayette county has been unusually large
the past few weeks, and one farmer
sold three to The M. Hamm Fertilizer
Company of this city, in one week.
Slipping on the ice has been the cause of many deaths, while disease has been busy and the number of animals
lost has been surprisingly large.

"These facts," continued the auctioneer, "together with the fact that all farm work is going to be later than usual, would indicate that within the next few weeks the prices paid
will be little short of phenomenal.
The farmers will have to have them
and the price will cut no figure as long as the stock is good."

He also predicted that a record-breaking crop of corn would be planted next year, and said that the amount of land plowed at present was very small. He looks for a large amount of wheat to be plowed up and the ground planted in corn.

Always Tired, With Little Vitality

MODERN TONIC, TONA VITA, WILL SURELY BUILD YOU UP AGAIN.

Are you one of the run-down, half sick nervous people with which the country is filled? Do you feel tired
all the time with very little vitality?
Do you sleep badly and feel as worn out in the morning as when you went to bed? Is your circulation poor and do you catch cold easily?
Have you stomach trouble and an irregular appetite? Are you nervous, moody and depressed?

These are sure symptoms of nervous debility. If you are struggling along in this miserable condition the best thing you can possibly do for yourself is to take "Tona Vita" the wonderful new tonic that has the unqualified endorsement of more physicians than any other medicine ever before offered to the public.

Here is what the Rev. Gustave
Frederick, pastor of the Evangelistic
church, Center Street, Milwaukee, Wis., has to say of it:

"Judging from my own experience

I do not hesitate to say that 'Tona Vita' is an extremely valuable preparation. I have not only used it myself, but other members of my family have been taking it with highly satisfactory results.

"So far as my own case is concerned I have been in a run-down condition for a year or so, tiring easily and being troubled with sleeplessness. I lacked vitality and caught cold readily, and my digestion and appetite were poor. I was depressed in mind and body and very nervous.

"I now feel stronger than for a long time. I have more energy and my work is done with much less effort. I sleep and eat better and feel as though rejuvenated."

Tona Vita acts quickly. You will be surprised how rapidly it will build
you up.

BASEBALL-OGRAPHY OF EDDIE COLLINS

Eddie Collins as Seen by Cesare.

By HOMER CROY.

In a big leather backed Bible resting squarely in the middle of the parlor table close up beside "Paradise Lost" and "The Life and Deeds of Davy Crockett" at Tarrytown, N. Y., where he was born, you can find the really true name of Eddie Collins—Edward Trowbridge Collins. All that, just as if it was being called out by the president of the board of education—who is also proprietor of the Elite Feed Store and the Hon Ton Coal Yard—on graduation day at the high school. Seats reserved for fathers and mothers—flowers should be sent to the Sunday school room.

The man at the half-way house of the Philadelphia Athletics began being called a phenom so early in life that every night before he went to bed he spent half an hour greasing his down with cold cream, and every time he found a hair on his upper lip he would turn three complete somersaults in the hotel bedroom and jump up and bump his head against the ceiling until the feeble old lady on the floor above had to telephone for another bottle of smelling salts.

He is still one of the youngest of the big league stars; his manager never lets him go out on the street alone at night after nine o'clock, and when the team is out on a tour the rest of the boys have to wash his hands and tie on his night cap.

He entered Columbia as a student, but graduated as a baseball player, giving up his time between baseball, football, basket ball, handball, water polo, tennis and track to an earnest study of Blackstone. Laying aside his quarter cover backgammon for a full cover horseshoe he took up baseball for good at a salary so comfortable that in stepping on a penny weighing machine as a friend was getting off he didn't care if the thing went back bang! and locked—he had that much money.

J. KLING IS BOSTON MANAGER

Former Star Backstop of Chicago Cubs Will Lead Bean Eaters in Place of Tenny.

Johnny Kling, for several years the star catcher of the Chicago Cubs, will try his hand at the managerial game. The famous backstop has been chosen as leader of the Boston National League team for the season of 1912, succeeding Fred Tenny, who held down the job last year. Kling has never before had experience as a manager, but knows a great deal of the national game. He has a head that is well filled with gray matter and has had the managerial bee buzz-ring in his bonnet for a long time. Kling played with the Boston team last season and gave evidence that his baseball days are not yet over. The Boston club changed hands not long ago and it is believed that the change will result beneficially for the team. One of the men now at the head of the club is John M. Ward, the famous old shortstop of the New York Giants. Ward and his associates will endeavor to build up a strong

In 1910 he came to bat with Cupid in the box and made the home run of his life, and now the two have a home of their own in Clifton Heights, a suburb of Philadelphia, with a planola in the parlor and honest-to-goodness chickens in the back yard. He never grows tired of talking about his planola and his chickens, and to him the sweetest music in the world is a duet between a planola and a pullet, with his wife putting the silverware on in the dining room.

He can sit back in his bay window with his feet on the window sill and by the cackle tell which one of his hens has laid an egg and which one is up.

He never smokes and never got a larraping in his life for sneaking out behind the millet stack with the rest of the gang and smoking a grapevine until it turned him so far inside out that he had to hold his epiglottis in with his thumb. He thinks that the man who uses the vile weed is going to that region where war is one continuous program from 11 a. m. till 11 p. m., children in arms not admitted; but he himself is wild about chocolate ice cream, believing that the other place in the skies is a magnificently fitted up drug store where the seats at the soda fountain are upholstered, and where a chorus of angels in short trousers flap up on their golden wings bearing straws with cork tips, urging you in silvery tones to have another.

The ambition of his life is to write a book—a real book with his name on the cover—and he says the one supreme blissful moment of his existence would be to lay his book on the center table, turn on the planola, and then have one of his Plymouth Rocks walk up on the porch and crow while his own private ticker inside rattled off the baseball score.

(Copyright, 1911, by W. G. Chapman.)

team to represent the National league in the Hub and with this object in view they selected Kling as the manager. Kling is a splendid judge of players and no man in the business can coach them along in better shape. He was long regarded as the strongest single factor in the success of the Chicago Cubs.

FEW ABLE MANAGERS MANY STAR BATTERS

Only Six Qualify as Being Successful Leaders.

Where Star Sluggers of 1911 Will Report This Year.

So Much Depends on Financial End of Baseball Venture That Any Captain Keeping Team in Lead Is Valuable Asset.

What salary is a successful major league baseball manager worth? The question is a common one, and the answer most commonly given is: "All is eager." That is about as near as one can express it in figures.

So much of the financial success of a baseball venture depends upon the showing of the team, which is the concrete representative of the venture, that any manager who can keep a team in the race for the championship of his league is worth a great deal to the baseball promoter.

In these days even a tail-end team is not necessarily a financial loser. If it plays 77 games at home before crowds made small by lack of interest in its efforts, it must be remembered that the same tail-end team plays 77 games away from home each season and gets on the average a shade better than 40 per cent of the receipts of the games.

But the big money in baseball is made by the "winners"—the champions and the near champions—who are in the race all or most all of the season. Consequently every club owner wants a winner, some of them for sportsmanlike as well as financial reasons; others of them merely for the coin. To get a winning ball team a club owner must get a successful manager. There is no other way. A promoter can spend money with both hands seven days a week for seven years, buying and developing ball players, and never get his team out of eighth place at the end of the season. Unless the club owner has a manager possessed of the peculiar qualifications demanded by the club, he cannot expect a winning team.

If it were possible to corral 12 or 15 stars of the present day into one team, handled by an inexperienced, incompetent manager, that aggregate of stars would stand small chance in a major league pennant race. A clever, brainy manager with a good team of average players is a better investment financially than a lot of managerless stars would be.

The supply of managers is so scarce that those who have made good beyond doubt can command almost any figure they ask for. The practice is becoming more and more common of cutting the manager in on the profits. This can be done either as a stockholder, as in the case of Frank Chance, of the Cubs, and Connie Mack, of the Athletics, or by making the manager's contract call for a certain percentage of the profits in addition to a stated salary, as in the case of Hugh Jennings, of the Detroit club.

Taking a glance at the managerial field as it stands today, there appears to be only five major league managers who can be included without qualification in the successful class. They are Frank Chance, Fred Clarke and John McGraw, in the National league, and Connie Mack and Hugh Jennings in the American league.

Several of Hard Hitting Players in Minors Have Been Drafted by National and American League Clubs—Few Unnoticed.

To Seek Motorboat Trophy.

English reports indicate that British owners will challenge America for the Harmsworth motor boat trophy again this summer.

WADDELL WAS PEER OF ALL SOUTHPAWS

Rube Waddell.

Conceding that all of these left-handers have merit, old-timers refuse to believe that any of them excel the celebrated Rube Waddell when the latter allowed himself to be led around by the nose by Connie Mack. For the Athletics Waddell pitched peerless baseball for several seasons. A disturber and a rule breaker under other managers, the Rube was as meek as a lamb under Mack, and without word of complaint he did an enormous amount of work. Though painfully eccentric Waddell showed headwork and skill. He held the league's strike-out record for a single season until it was topped by Walter Johnson of the Washingtons. His control was especially good and he had the number of practically every batsman who faced him.

Tom Ramsey, of the old Louisville club, was another left-handed world beater. For many years he was rated as the kingpin and his ability earned a big salary until he fell by the wayside because of his habits. Kilroy of the Baltimore American association team of more than 20 years ago was a wonder. The Bostonians in the old days had a corker in Kid Madden. Then Pittsburgh boasted of Ed Morris, and Detroit won a world's championship chiefly through the southpaw work of Lady Baldwin.

Probably the first really great left-hander in the National league was Charley Buffington, who helped Boston win a pennant in 1883. Buffington had a drop ball that baffled the heaviest sluggers. He used it incessantly together with curves that finally wore out his pitching arm. But as veterans remember him, he was one of the greatest pitchers that ever wore a toe plate. St. Louis, in Von der Ahe's reign, had a star in Theodore Breitenstein, a little sorrel-topped fellow who never knew when he had enough. With great speed and beautiful control Breitenstein did splendid work, and finally Von der Ahe sold him to Cincinnati for $10,000. That was 26 years ago, yet Breitenstein was playing ball last year in the Southern association.

DOINGS IN OHIO

What People in the Cities and Towns in the Buckeye State Are Doing and Saying—Notes of Interest.

Will Compete In Three Continents.

Columbus, O., Feb. 12.—Ohio marks men will compete in contests in three different continents this year. A team of five Buckeye sharpshooters will take part in a big rifle tournament to be held at Buenos Ayres, South America, under the auspices of the Argentine Republic, and in which the leading countries of the world are asked to enter teams, either in July or August. Ohio will be represented on teams selected by the National Rifle association to uphold the honors of the United States in shooting contests in France, Sweden and Canada. The members of these teams will be chosen by competition.

Fire Destroys Business Blocks.

Kent, O., Feb. 12.—The Longcoy and France-Thompson blocks were burned to the ground. Four firemen had narrow escapes. Byron Fessenden and George Stark were buried in the debris when the second floor collapsed, and Henry Longcoy and Leonard Colton were covered with gasoline when a barrel exploded. Both rushed from the room covered with flames, but were not seriously burned. A defective chimney caused the fire. The total loss will reach $16,000.

Young Lad Suicides.

Akron, O., Feb. 12.—Angered because his father refused to grant his desire to quit school and go to Texas, Russell R. Rowles, 17, son of Frank L. Rowles, shot himself through the head. The boy had been in ill health for some time and thought the change would do him good. The suicide followed an argument with the father, who thought it best that the son remain at home.

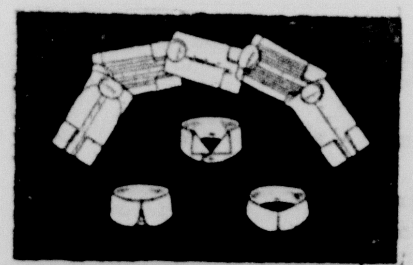

Convicts On the Mend.

Columbus, O., Feb. 12.—Otis Hurley and William Brennan, convicts, wounded during their attempted escape from the penitentiary Friday, are much improved. It is thought Brennan is past the critical point and that Hurley has an even chance to recover without amputation of his leg.

Moore Announces Candidacy.

Youngstown, O., Feb. 12.—E. H. Moore, state insurance superintendent, stated positively that he would not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor. He announced, however, that he would be a Harmon candidate for delegate to the Democratic national convention from the Eighteenth district.

crowds made small by lack of interest in its efforts, it must be remembered that the same tail-end team plays 77 games away from home each season and gets on the average a shade better than 40 per cent. of the receipts of the games.

But the big money in baseball is made by the "winners" — the champions and the near champions who are in the race all or most all of the season. Consequently every club owner wants a winner, some of them for sportsmanlike as well as financial reasons; others of them merely for the coin. To get a winning ball team a club owner must get a successful manager. There is no other way. A promoter can spend money with both hands seven days a week for seven years, buying and developing ball players, and never get his team out of eighth place at the end of the season. Unless the club owner has a manager possessed of the peculiar qualifications demanded by the club, he cannot expect a winning team.

If it were possible to corral 12 or 15 stars of the present day into one team, handled by an inexperienced, incompetent manager, that aggregate of stars would stand small chance in a major league pennant race. A clever, brainy manager with a good team of average players is a better investment financially than a lot of managerless stars would be.

The supply of managers is so scarce that those who have made good beyond doubt can command almost any figure they ask for. The practice is becoming more and more common of cutting the manager in on the profits. This can be done either as a stockholder, as in the case of Frank Chance, of the Cubs, and Connie Mack, of the Athletics, or by making the manager's contract call for a certain percentage

Rube Waddell.

Conceding that all of these left-handers have merit, old-timers refuse to believe that any of them excel the celebrated Rube Waddell when the latter allowed himself to be led around by the nose by Connie Mack. For the Athletics Waddell pitched peerless baseball for several seasons. A disturber and a rule breaker under other managers, the Rube was as meek as a lamb under Mack, and without word of complaint he did an enormous amount of work. Though painfully eccentric Waddell showed headwork and skill. He held the league's strike-out record for a single season until it was topped by Walter Johnson of the Washingtons. His control was especially good and he had the number of practically every batsman who faced him.

Tom Ramsey, of the old Louisville club, was another left-handed world beater. For many years he was rated as the kingpin and his ability earned a big salary until he fell by the wayside because of his habits. Kirooy of the Baltimore American association team of more than 20 years ago was a wonder. The Bostonians in the old days had a corker in Kid Madden. Then Pittsburgh boasted of Ed Morris, and Detroit won a world's championship chiefly through the southpaw work of Lady Baldwin.

Probably the first really great left-hander in the National league was Charley Buffington, who helped Boston win a pennant in 1882. Buffington had a drop ball that baffled the heaviest sluggers. He used it incessantly together with curves that finally wore out his pitching arm. But as veterans remember him, he was one of the greatest pitchers that ever wore a toe plate. St. Louis, in Von der Ahe's reign, had a star in Theodore Breitenstein, a little sorrel-topped fellow who never knew when he had enough. With great speed and beautiful control Breitenstein did splendid work, and finally Von der Ahe sold him to Cincinnati for $10,000. That was 24 years ago, yet Breitenstein was playing ball last year in the Southern association.

By HOMER CROY.

In a big leather backed Bible resting squarely in the middle of the parlor table close up beside "Paradise Lost" and "The Life and Deeds of Davy Crockett" at Tarrytown, N. Y., where he was born, you can find the coolly treasured name of Eddie Collins—Edward Trowbridge Collins. All that, just as if it was being called out by the president of the board of education—who is also proprietor of the Elite Feed Store and the Bon Ton Coal Yard—on graduation day at the high school. Seats reserved for fathers and mothers—flowers should be sent to the Sunday school room.

The man at the half-way house of the Philadelphia Athletics began being called a phenom so early in life that every night before he went to bed he spent half an hour greasing his down with cold cream, and every time he found a hair on his upper lip he would turn three complete somersaults in the hotel bedroom and jump up and bump his head against the ceiling until the feeble old lady on the floor above had to telephone for another bottle of smelling salts.

He is still one of the youngest of the big league stars; his manager never lets him go out on the street alone at night after nine o'clock, and when the team is out on a tour the rest of the boys have to wash his hands and tie on his night cap.

He entered Columbia as a student, but graduated as a baseball player, giving up his time between baseball, football, basket ball, handball, water polo, tennis and track to an earnest study of Blackstone. Laying aside his quarter cover backgammon for a full cover horsehide he took up baseball for good at a salary so comfortable that in stepping on a penny weighing machine as a friend was getting off he didn't care if the thing went back bang! and locked—he had that much money.

J. KLING IS BOSTON MANAGER

Former Star Backstop of Chicago Cubs Will Lead Bean Eaters in Place of Tenny.

Johnny Kling, for several years the star catcher of the Chicago Cubs, will try his hand at the managerial game. The famous backstop has been chosen as leader of the Boston National league team for the season of 1912, succeeding Fred Tenny, who held down the job last year. Kling has never before had experience as a manager, but knows a great deal of the national game. He has a head that is well filled with gray matter and has had the managerial bee buzz ing in his bonnet for a long time. Kling played with the Boston team last season and gave evidence that his baseball days are not yet over.

The Boston club changed hands not long ago and it is believed that the change will result beneficially for the team. One of the men now at the head of the club is John M. Ward, the famous old shortstop of the New York Giants. Ward and his associates will endeavor to build up a strong

In 1910 he came to bat with Cupid in the box and made the home run of his life, and now the two have a home of their own in Clifton Heights, a suburb of Philadelphia, with a planola in the parlor and honest-to-goodness chickens in the back yard. He never grows tired of talking about his planola and his chickens, and to him the sweetest music in the world is a duet between a planola and a pullet, with his wife putting the silverware on in the dining room.

He can sit back in his bay window with his feet on the window sill and by the candle tell which one of his hens has laid an egg and which one is up.

He never smokes and never got a harp in his life for sneaking out behind the millet stack with the rest of the gang and smoking a grapevine until it turned him so far inside out that he had to hold his epiglottis in with his thumb. He thinks that the man who uses the vile weed is going to that region where war is one continuous program from 11 a. m. till 11 p. m., children in arms not admitted; but he himself is wild about chocolate ice cream, believing that the other place in the skies is a magnificently fitted up drug store where the seats at the soda fountain are upholstered, and where a chorus of angels play golden harps while pages in short trousers flap up on their golden wings bearing straws with cork tips, urging you in silvery tones to have another.

The ambition of his life is to write a book—a real book with his name on the cover—and he says the one supreme blissful moment of his existence would be to lay his book on the center table, turn on the planola, and then have one of his Plymouth Rocks walk up on the porch and crow while his own private ticker inside rattled off the baseball score.

team to represent the National league in the Hub and with this object in view they selected Kling as the manager. Kling is a splendid judge of players and no man in the business can coach them along in better shape. He was long regarded as the strongest single factor in the success of the Chicago Cubs.

GOSSIP AMONG SPORTS

Ebbetts' new park site in Brooklyn is 500 by 600 feet.

Talking baseball in zero weather is not as foolish as it sounds.

Clark Griffith will block any moves of Detroit to send George Moriarity to Providence.

Cy Young says Jimmy McAleer was the greatest fielder he ever saw. Yes, this includes Ty Cobb.

Jimmy McAleer denies that he is trying to trade Tris Speaker to the White Sox for Harry Lord.

"Two pitchers are enough," says John M. Ward. We they might be if they were Walsh and Matthewson.

Harry Truby wants a place as umpire in the American association. The veteran worked in the Ohio state last year.

Roy Corhan says he will "come back" strong after that beating. Fred Clarke will take to the bench after a similar experience.

Putting baseball under a civil service commission might be all right if the commissioners would become disinterested in baseball.

Besides other difficulties Hank O'Day has a race problem on hand at Cincinnati next season. He must settle the Cuban question.

Bill Burns, who at last has found a resting place with the Minneapolis Millers, the Mecca of major league "has-beens," can read to his heart's content down in the rathskeller unless Rube Waddell starts something.

Frank Chance.

of the profits in addition to a stated salary, as in the case of Hugh Jennings, of the Detroit club.

Taking a glance at the managerial field as it stands today, there appears to be only five major league managers who can be included without qualification in the successful class. They are Frank Chance, Fred Clarke and John McGraw, in the National league, and Connie Mack and Hugh Jennings in the American league.

Ty Cobb.

Both rushed from the room covered with flames, but were not seriously burned. A defective chimney caused the fire. The total loss will reach $16,000.

Young Lad Suicides.

Akron, O., Feb. 12.—Angered because his father refused to grant his desire to quit school and go to Texas, Russell R. Bowles, 17, son of Frank L. Bowles, shot himself through the head.
